FIFAF21 awards are proud to be in association with Future of Fashion (FOF) which is a fashion academy which inspires young and emerging talents from around the globe, it offers a number of master classes nurturing creative talent in styling, designing and pattern making, runway tuition, makeup and fashion photography.

Giving its students a core of skills and creative confidence to go forth and progress in a career of fashion.

Working with teens, fashion graduates through to brands in infancy. FOF students have been featured on the pages of Vogue.

Created pieces sold in Harrods, Selfridges, Liberty's of London. Been featured on the BBC, E! News and more than 5000 pupils have made it into fashion week in London, New York and

Los Angeles through the fashion incentive.

To date FOF was founded by the worlds most expensive designer

Debbie Wingham. It was established in 2012.

She is still the main tutor but during the master classes opens up her connections and invites fellow industry experts to teach classes and give talks to inspire the next generation of fashionistas.

Debbie Wingham is internationally renowned as an haute couturier and artist.

Best known as the worlds most expensive designer. She shot to fame in 2012 with her creation the black diamond dress which went viral and since then she created the red diamond abaya, worlds most expensive shoes and bag.

Her works have graced the pages of more than 150 covers of luxury lifestyle magazines and catwalks around the globe. Celebrity clients include Katy Perry, Kate Winslet, Dita Von Teese, Hilary swank, Drake and Justin Beiber. Wingham continues to juggle a career as a haute couturier, cake artist and TV personality.

In 2019 alone she filmed 20 TV shows and she always manages to find time for her fashion academy which supports emerging talent in all sectors of the fashion world.
